Key Takeaways

Trough-type cable trays are available in the Maldives through local manufacturers like Brilltech Engineers, offering customized and standard solutions for industrial and commercial applications. Overview of Trough-Type Cable Trays

Trough-type cable trays are designed to support and organize electrical cables in a semi-enclosed structure, providing protection while allowing ventilation. They are typically made from materials such as galvanized steel, aluminum, or FRP (fiberglass-reinforced plastic), which offer durability, corrosion resistance, and electrical insulation depending on the application. Trough trays are ideal for power, control, instrumentation, and telecommunication cables, especially in environments where partial protection from dust, moisture, or mechanical damage is required.

Local Production in the Maldives

In the Maldives, Brilltech Engineers Pvt. Ltd. is a leading manufacturer and supplier of electrical cable trays, including trough-type designs . Established in 2007, the company provides both standard and customized cable tray solutions to meet industry-specific requirements. Their production facilities are equipped with advanced machinery to ensure high-quality manufacturing and compliance with international standards. Brilltech Engineers also offers ISO-certified products, ensuring reliability and safety for industrial and commercial installations.

Features and Benefits

- Customization: Trough-type trays can be tailored in width, height, and length to suit specific project needs .
- Material Options: Available in galvanized steel, aluminum, and FRP, providing options for corrosion resistance and electrical insulation .
- Durability: FRP trough trays are lightweight, non-conductive, and resistant to UV, fire, and chemical exposure, making them suitable for harsh environments .
- Ease of Installation: Modular design allows for easy assembly, maintenance, and future expansion .
- Accessory Compatibility: Supports a range of fittings such as elbows, tees, and couplers for flexible routing .

Applications

Trough-type cable trays in the Maldives are widely used in:

- Industrial facilities for heavy-duty power and control cables
- Commercial buildings for structured cabling and instrumentation
- Infrastructure projects including data centers, telecom networks, and renewable energy installations

How to Procure

Interested buyers can contact Brilltech Engineers directly to discuss project requirements, request quotations, and explore customization options. The company also provides guidance on installation accessories and support systems to ensure a complete cable management solution . In summary, the Maldives has local production capabilities for trough-type cable trays, with manufacturers like Brilltech Engineers offering customized, high-quality, and ISO-certified solutions suitable for a wide range of industrial and commercial applications.
